Canadian Communism not dead - Stenberg

Alf Stenberg, Secretary of the Communist Party of Canada, yesterday rejected the idea that his party "has outlived its usefulness in Canada."

Stenberg, speaking before the first open meeting of the Young Communist League, declared that the recent rise in left wing social reform groups would not displace the Communists.

"The difference between the Communists and the social reformers is that we see the fundamental contradiction in our society and recognize the struggle between the bourgeoisie and the working class. Our objective is the elimination of the capitalist system in favor of the socialist state," he added.

Stenberg then called for union control over automation and the abolishment of university tuitions.

He stated that Canadian Communists must promote reform movements in order to "cut back the control of the bourgeoisie and extend the powers of the working class."

He labelled the recent Canada/United States auto pact a "$50 million gift to Ford, G.M. and Chrysler, precisely the amount needed to abolish tuition fees."

Stenberg stated that he was for a peaceful takeover by the Communist Party. "We are talking of socialism based on the democratic institutions developed here over the years. You cannot have communism without democracy and freedom of a much higher degree than we have here today."

ISA to initiate monthly paper

The International Students' Association plans to publish a monthly newspaper called 'The Forum' this year. It will carry articles by writers on and off campus, and present major points of view on international issues.

Alex Weinberger, the editor, plans to encourage intelligent discussion of international problems through articles and letters to the editor.

The first issue of 'The Forum' will appear on October 29. October 18 is the deadline for articles which are to appear in that issue. They should be submitted to the ISA office, Room 41 in the Union basement.

UGEQ blasts Bladen Report on Free Education attitude

The 55,000-strong Union Générale des Etudiants du Québec (UGEQ) yesterday blasted the Bladen Commission Report, condemned its main recommendations and told businessmen to get their hands off higher education in Canada.

Pointing out that UGEQ has never recognized the commission set up by the Canadian Association of Universities and Colleges, the students' union emphasized that "education is exclusively a provincial responsibility" and accuses Prime Minister Pearson of "talking of the Commission as if he considered it a royal commission." And it described the Report's general recommendations as "incomplete and unrealistic."

On its particular recommendations, UGEQ points to the $475 million recently spent by the federal Government on "submarines, planes and arms that will never be used", an expenditure that is still "only a minimal part" of the Defence budget and compares it with the Report's call for $330 million expenditure on universities.

UGEQ's heaviest criticism falls on the Bladen Commission's attitude towards free education. "It is clear in the minds of Quebec students that in raising federal aid by an amount which, although seemingly impressive, is in fact ridiculous, and in opposing free education, the Commission is trying to maintain an educational system in which only the privileged have access to higher education."

It continues: "To wish to maintain an educational system based on social and economic discrimination is to deny the right of all to an education according to ability, it is to reject the democratization of education of which the first step is free education and it is to show a complete absence of any sense of social justice..."

Universities, now almost wholly financed by the state, should have their affairs taken out of the "hands of businessmen who know nothing about the university." To argue otherwise is to show proof "of a reactionary and basically capitalist philosophy."

In conclusion, UGEQ criticizes the Bladen recommendation that graduates return one per cent of their income to their alma mater. This recommendation "shows an absence of global vision on the part of the commissioners. 'Education is conceived of in terms of what the individual has received rather than in terms of what he should return to society.'

"It is this individualistic, capitalistic attitude, which together with the commissioners' refusal to recommend that society should take in hand that for which it pays and its further refusal to allow that society accessibility to education, which shows that the commissioners wish to leave the question of education in the hands of private enterprise, that is to say in disorder, in atrophy and in stagnation."

Sobriety to be enforced

Pinkertons to aid Key

Two Pinkerton men have been asked to assist the Scarlet Key Society in controlling the eager fans at football games.

"The position of the Scarlet Key has always been a controversial one" stated Lloyd Baron, an executive of the Society.

"It is", he pointed out, "a body of hosts for the University, guides for outsiders, not a peacekeeping organization."

As in the past, two important regulations will be enforced at the games: no liquor shall be allowed in the stands, and any unruly spectator will be removed by the Scarlet Key, aided by Pinkerton men.

Editorial Board Meeting

There will be a meeting of the Editorial Board at 7 pm in the Managing Board rooms on the 4th floor of the University Centre.

Department heads will meet today at 1 pm in the office, and desk and copy editors tomorrow at 1 pm.

Cancellation of lectures

All lectures and laboratory periods will be cancelled this afternoon from 3 to 6 pm, except those in Medicine and Dentistry. Fall Convocation will be held in the Currie Gym at 4 pm and students and staff are invited.

Lectures will be cancelled on Monday, October 11, Thanksgiving Day.

Because of Open House all lectures and laboratory periods in Arts and Science and Engineering will be cancelled on Friday, October 15. Lectures in all other faculties will be cancelled from noon on.

Wardens improve phone situation in men's residences

Boys in McConnell, Molson and Gardner Halls will be guaranteed a peaceful study year as a result of steps taken by the Wardens' Committee to rectify the phone set-up in the residences.

The phones will not be moved to the basements of the halls as previously announced by the Committee but will be installed by the enclosed stairwells at the ends of the buildings. The cost will be in the neighbourhood of 4½ thousand dollars.

At present, there is one pay-phone on each floor located in the hallway corridors. Complaints have been received from residents whose rooms are located beside the booths.

The decision to move the phones downstairs was reconsidered by the Wardens in view of the inconvenience to those on the upper floors.

The enclosed stairwells are the only practical places in the buildings which are reasonably sound-proof to the residence rooms.

The relocation will be completed as soon as possible this year.

West Indian Affairs' Conference features author George Lamming

A Conference on West Indian Affairs will be held at the Social Centre of the University of Montreal on October 8 and 9.

Guest speaker will be the noted West Indian novelist, George Lamming, who has written a number of books exploring the theme of the search of his people for social and political identity in the modern world.

The object of the Conference is to consider the problems of the West Indies and to make recommendations in the light of their plans for the future.

Other speakers will be Professor Mervyn Alleyne who is at present in the Department of Linguistics at the University of Indiana, and Dr. Frances Henry of the McGill Department of Sociology and Anthropology. They will discuss "Race and Culture in the West Indies".

Dr. Hugh Walker of the Agricultural and Economic Research Council of Canada and Bernard Yankey who is studying for his doctorate at the University of Wisconsin will speak on "Economic Change and West Indian Development".

Finally, Locksley Edmonson, an assistant professor at the University of Waterloo and Alvin Johnson, an M.A. student at the McGill Centre for Developing Areas

Studies will discuss "Politics and Change in the West Indies".

Delegates are expected from the West Indies, New York, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and the Maritimes. Representatives from various universities, businesses and the government will also attend the Conference.

Beggar on a pot of gold

The basic philosophy of the Bladen Commissioners arises from the concept of an individual abstracted from society. While it recognizes the benefits to the individual of a university education, it ignores the contribution that graduates make to economic and social development. As the Economic Council's first report put it: "The supply of highly skilled and professional manpower will undoubtedly be a critical factor in the achievement of our economic goals in the years ahead."

Economists are gradually realizing that there is a high rate of return from investment in human resources. The rate of our economic progress is endangered by our inadequate supply of trained manpower. Rapid economic growth requires, as well as capital, natural and human resources. Of these three requirements, skilled manpower is in dangerously short supply. Concern over this national deficiency was seen in Immigration Minister Nicholson's recent campaign in Europe to attract skilled workers and professionals to this country. It has been estimated that Canada could easily absorb 200,000 skilled workers annually. Successive governments have been indifferent to the need for this kind of investment; and this indifference has contributed to our present plight. At the present rate, we may find ourselves in the position of being a beggar on a pot of gold.

In practical terms, then, Canada must begin to invest in the technical ability of its citizens. A first step would be to establish a Ministry of Science and Technology, responsible for government initiative in developing human resources. This new ministry should promote research and development inside Canada. It should establish technical schools across the country. And it should pay particular attention to the rational use of Canada's labour power.

If the fruits of economic prosperity are shared by all members of society, why then should not all citizens share the financial responsibility for their common future?

The campaign

A definite pattern is beginning to appear. Clearly Mr. Diefenbaker has chosen the role of Jeremiah, come among the townspeople to dwell on the misdeeds of sinners. There is a vast amount of material for his sermons. And the barbaric events surrounding the Darabaner case should provide even more ammunition.

The Liberal tactic is to portray Mr. Diefenbaker as a flag-bearer. The flag, of course, is the Union Jack. The number of times that the Liberal press effects a connection between Mr. Diefenbaker and the Union Jack provides a fascinating study in the use of the stiletto. For their own man, the ploy seems to be that of the statesman too busy with the affairs of men to become involved in the sordid business of electioneering. There is also much talk of "peaking too soon", surely one of the more unfortunate metaphors drawn from erotica.

As for Mr. Douglas, he is faced with the problem of showing precisely how his party differs from the Liberals. A gargantuan task.

M. Caouette is on safer ground. He threatens Quebec with Viet Nam conscription in the event of a Liberal victory, a perennial in Quebec politics. It is just possible he may even get some votes out of it.

LETTERS

Between The Desire And...

Dear Sir,

Mr. Atallah takes a very dim view of the student attitudes he has encountered. He is disillusioned by what he regards as apathy, evasion of responsibility, moral and intellectual failure on our part. He sorrowfully points out our coming doom.

Mr. Atallah is right. We have "lofty principles" and humanitarian ideals, but we are embarrassed and frightened, when we are not merely confused, by our attempts to realize them. We are committed, we have been committed for some time, to an increasing socialism, to an increasing internationalism, and at the very least to the reduction and containment of war, yet we hesitate to increase old-age pensions, create free education, alter our immigration policy, urge the admission of Red China to the United Nations, or condemn the American action in Vietnam.

We are dedicated to ever-higher standards in education, yet we continue to pay salaries which make insurance sales a more attractive field than teaching. We are increasingly aware of the gap between the news we would like to read and the news which we are reading. Yet we continue to believe that, in spite of our disappointment, it is beyond us to do anything about it.

If you disagree with this ask yourself what you believe should be done, and compare this with what you, or any of us, are doing. People used to write letters to the editor, or to their congressman, or M.P. We are now too sophisticated to do that.

Fred Finkelberg, B.A. 3

From The Heart of Darkness

Dear Sir:

Why not? Why not a 'Band of white supremacy' across Africa? Perhaps it would be a good idea here and now to make the white stand in Africa clear; for too long, only one side of the question has been represented, through the biased and prejudiced American press, from which, may I venture to suggest, came the background for your editorial of October 5.

Speaking from first hand experience — I belong to a generation of white colonialists — I would like to put forward briefly our side of the question. We have civilized Africa; we have made it our home. Many Whites in Africa regard themselves not as Englishmen or Dutchmen but as South Africans or Rhodesians, in the same way as you call yourselves Canadians. You talk of the African majority; yes, they are a majority; they are mostly an illiterate, uneducated, primitive majority. Are such people expected to lead their country in a modern-day civilization? No, they cannot; and when the Whites have been forced out, the Communists will step in. This has been done, for example, in places like Tanzania.

We would have expected criticism from you least of all; your ancestors many years ago did what the Whites are now trying to do in South Africa and Rhodesia; establish a home and a heritage for themselves and their children. You have succeeded; are we to fall because of your opposition? And if you condemn 'apartheid', look at your reservations and remember how the Indian tribes were decimated at the hands of the early North American settlers.

The Whites have fast disappeared off the map of Africa; but I am thankful that somewhere there are still hopes for a white part of Africa, and there are still men strong enough to achieve it. Before you condemn again, pause and consider if you would also condemn those who sought and fought to settle and civilize North America.

Sara Collinson, B.A. 1

Just Too Much

Dear Sir,

As a fellow American, I would like to congratulate Mr. Barry Horowitz for so effectively reinforcing and, indeed, transcending the stereotype of Americans abroad as rude bores lacking a knowledge of the rules of common decency. Anyone who would, at the start of a university career in a foreign country, publicly label the entire population of that country as "ultra-conservative, narrow-minded, and hypocritical" goes beyond mere boorishness into the realm of sheer nastiness.

It was so inspiring to read the trite and arrogant apologies for American foreign policy as "necessary" action for the leader of the "free world", which includes, I would assume, the Dominican Republic. Furthermore, it must have been comforting for Canadians to read Mr. Horowitz's proposed new application of the Monroe Doctrine — i.e., if Canada is attacked in a way similar to

South Viet Nam (Separatist guerrillas?), the U.S. Marines will be arriving here, presumably at "the request of the Canadian people."

Jazz Society meets Friday

The Jazz Society, returning after a year of inactivity, will hold its first organizational meeting on Friday, October 8 at 1 pm in the Union, Room B-23.

The Society is planning to hold discussions this year on the relation of jazz to general culture. Brian Robinson of the English Department will discuss the topic "The Significance of Jazz in 20th Century Culture" in a future meeting.

There will also be workshops on the analysis of chords and their progressions. Record sessions are planned which will feature such cuts as John Coltrane's "A Love Supreme".

And, the Society will have regular jam sessions for all its members.

Panel holds forth on literature

A Panel discussion titled "What is Literature?" will take place today at Douglas Hall at 8:30 pm.

Claude Armand Sheppard will moderate the panel consisting of Jean Ethier-Blais, Louis Dudek and Hugh MacLennan.

Sheppard is a lawyer by profession, but an artist by avocation. He is noted for starting a theatre group in Montreal. Ethier-Blais is head of the McGill French Canadian Studies Program, and Louis Dudek is a noted Montreal poet. MacLennan is a well known part-time lecturer at McGill, novelist and winner of the Governor General Medal for his book, "The Watch that Ends the Night".

Open House Debate on next weekend

Open House activities next weekend will include a debate on the topic, "Resolved that university freshmen are not adequately prepared for college life."

The affirmative will be presented by Professors Stansbury, Yates, and Fergusson; the negative by Principals Penton (Lower Canada College), Anderson (Ottumwa High) and Glashan (Marquette High).

The debate will be held Saturday, October 16, at 11 am in H132.

It is being sponsored by the Open House Committee in order to bring out some of the causes of the high first-year failure rate.

McGill will participate in Mental Health Program

The opening meeting of the Mental Hospital Visiting Programme is scheduled for 1 pm today in the Ballroom of the Union.

Modelled upon a unique programme at Harvard University, the Visiting Programme is designed to provide opportunities for regular students to aid in the convalescence both of patients who are at home and those who are hospitalized.

Participants may visit groups of patients, they may spend an evening each week in town with individual patients, or they may visit patients at home.

This programme is the product of research work by Linda Perley, and is designed to involve several hundred students. It has the full support of over six main hospitals in Montreal.

Volunteers can learn to relate to patients and what will be expected of them by the hospitals by attending an orientation programme organized by the Mental Hygiene Institute.

The programme is under the auspices of the Social Develop-

OQAA jottings

• First two OQAA championship tournaments of the season take place this week. Laval is host for the golf tourney at Royal Quebec Golf Club in Boischatel, Que. Friday, with McMaster defending champ. For the first time, eastern and western divisional championships will be held in tennis prior to the Senior Intercollegiate conference finals at McMaster Oct. 15, 16. Eastern championships are at McGill and the western playdowns at McMaster, both Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The final will bring together singles, doubles and team champions of east and west. Laval is defending team titlist.

• Guelph Rugger Redmen will not seek the Carling Cup in Ontario senior playoffs this season. Aggies are concentrating on Senior Intercollegiate conference play and a series of exhibitions.

• Eric Walter of McGill Redmen moved into sixth place in all-time SIFL scoring with his touchdown against Toronto last week. He now has 108 career points, only 44 less than the record of 152 held by Ron Stewart. Bryce Taylor of Toronto, the league's highest scoring quarterback of all time, now has 100 career points and is ninth on the record list.

• Dr. John T. Powell, a former Olympie track coach for South Africa and Britain, is head of University of Guelph's new school of physical education. Guelph is adding a degree course in P.H.E.

• Dick Krol, son of former Western and Toronto Argos football great Joe Krol, is working out with Varsity Blues as a split end. Young Krol's recent football activity has been limited to the University's interfaculty league because his major sports concentration is in the field of baseball. He has been a successful semi-pro pitcher in the Ontario Senior Intercounty League and is rated a good pro prospect. Although also an excellent football player, he will have to buck Mike Eben to gain a start with Blues. Varsity coach Dalt White is also taking a look at Mike Bulger, a 6-foot-5, 220-pound end from St. Patrick's College in Ottawa.

Ruggermen meet Queen's; look for first victory

The rugger Redmen are still contenders despite last Saturday's narrow loss to Toronto by 14-12. In that game, McGill gave notice that it was a team to be respected, and should a win be posted against Queen's this Saturday at home, the team may carry on through to the championship.

In Toronto, the forward pack gained plenty of good ball from the set scrums thanks to the brilliant hooking of Mike Hudson. More encouraging still was the speed shown in the open which enabled Redmen to take possession of the ball from loose mauls. Gerry Ratzer kept his pack hunting the ball right until the final whistle, something McGill has not been renowned for in recent years. Toronto did show up McGill weaknesses in lineout play which will need to be overcome.

McGill points came from two tries by Rowland and Edwards and two penalty goals by Blackman and Kissling. Toronto notched four tries and a conversion, the latter being the vital two points that separated the teams. Kissling was unlucky not to tie the game when his attempted conversion of Edward's try was disallowed by the referee when it crossed over the top of the left upright.

McGill will be without the services of Kissling, for the game against Queen's this Saturday. He suffered pulled ligaments in the knee which will sideline him for at least two Saturdays. All other walking wounded are expected to report fit this week. Nevertheless, Kissling's absence has given coach Peter Covo a problem of trying to sort out the best back-line alignment. Last night he was experimenting with different combinations in an exhibition game McGill played against Town of Mount Royal.
